The Ministry of Finance has issued the following statement:

The Ministry of Finance is currently reminding citizens of their obligations other than paying their due taxes and fees, and of the exemptions they can benefit from by virtue of the Budget Law so they avoid bearing follow-up charges and penalties.

A website has recently raised questions about the cost of these messages and the company sending them. This has stirred a wave of questioning from the media that fell in the trap of bad intentions laid by the author of the article.

Therefore, the Ministry of Finance would like to clarify that it has not spent a cent on this campaign that falls in the scope of the cooperation with the Ministry of Telecommunication and is similar to other undertaken by the Ministry with media outlets. You can contact the DG of the Ministry of Finance for further clarification and details.
